Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

1. Claims 4-6 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as containing subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to reasonably convey to one skilled in the relevant art that the inventor(s), at the time the application was filed, had possession of the claimed invention. There is no basis in the original specification for the phrase "wherein the only portion of said metatarsal guard which transmits the load to the sole is the single concave right support leg and the single concave left support leg". The specification clearly recites that "load from an object fallin on metatarsal guard 10 will be transmitted , in part, to toe cap 8" (pages 4-5). And since the toe cap clearly rests on the sole, it appears that the front lip of the guard transmits a portion of the load to the sole through the toe cap.

2. Claims 4-6 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

In claim 3 the phrase "wherein the only portion of said metatarsal guard which transmits the load to the sole is the single concave right support leg and the single concave left support leg" is confusing, vague, and indefinite because it is not clear what structural limitations applicant intends to encompass with such language.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

Art Unit: 3728

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

2. Claims 4-6 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Fortin (5457898).

Fortin shows a shoe comprising a sole (12), a toe cap (15), an upper (14), and a metatarsal guard (11) with a convex arch/instep portion (shown in figure 1), and a single right and complementary left leg (side portions which lead to edge 13) as claimed. In reference to the limitation of "only a single", the fact that the single legs shown in Fortin include a slit does not increase the number of legs, and/or the portion forward of the slit can be considered to be a front flange/or part of the lip which overlies the toe cap. In reference to the phrase "the only portion of the metatarsal guard which transmits the load to the sole is the single.... leg", the legs (either the entire sides or only the rear portion of the sides) transmit the load and the front lip (at 16 and/or 16 and the forward portions of the sides) transmit the load to the sole through the toe cap (as applicant has disclosed such, specifically on the last line of page 4 through line 1 of page 5) and therefore meets the functional recitation in the claims inasmuch as this limitations is understood.

3. Claims 4-6 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being clearly anticipated by Krajcir (4908963).

Krajcir shows a shoe with a toe cap (8), sole (5-7), and metatarsal guard (figure 2b) which has a single concave right support leg (formed by 10, 11, and 14), and a single left support leg (formed by 10, 11, and 14), a lip (front of element 10) which overlies the toe cap (see figure 1), and the bottom of the legs contacting the top of the sole (shown in figure 1 as claimed).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

4. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

5. Claims 4-6 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Fortin.

If applicant argues that the legs of Fortin are not considered to be "only a single..." because of the flexibility slit (19) formed in the legs, it has been held that omission of an element and its function in a combination where the remaining elements perform the same functions as before involves only routine skill in the art. In re Karlson, 136 USPQ 184. It would have been obvious to remove the slit (19) from the shoe of Fortin to provide a stronger and stiffer shoe.
